When The Equipment Arrives...

For those of you that remember, I told a story in a sermon not too long ago about the strange saga of trying to order some exercise equipment. It happened during the middle of last summer. I thought it would be great to try to get a few things to make exercising at home easier since we were not getting out much due to COVID.

So, I ordered the equipment and waited for 4 weeks for it to ship to my house. When that timeframe had come and gone, I looked at my order status and discovered that it had been delivered in... Puerto Rico! I was stunned. Having spoken with Amazon, I was able to get a refund and set out to order from another company.

I ordered the second one and several weeks went by...still no equipment. I called again, and this time I discovered that no one even knew an order existed! So, I got a refund on that order and tried a third time.

Finally, after about six months of ordering and waiting and talking to customer service my equipment arrived. If that story taught me patience, here's another lesson I've been learning ever since it showed up on my doorstep.

I've learned that having exercise equipment is very different than using it. You see, for six months I was able to make excuses. I was able to put off doing anything because I could blame the companies that couldn't deliver my equipment. Sure, I could have run or done push-ups but blaming was much easier.

But now? Now I am out of excuses! Now I have what I told myself I needed to exercise and now if I don't want to exercise, I can't blame anyone...except for myself.

Now this is a very simple reality, but it is quite difficult to apply in our lives. We can have all the knowledge, all the tools, all the equipment—but if we never put it into practice then it is all for naught.

Isn't that what Jesus taught us when he told the story of the wise and foolish builders in Matthew 7:24-27? Both builders heard Jesus' words—they had all the information they needed. But only one builder acted upon Jesus' words and allowed the message of the Lord to change him.

As with exercise, having the right spiritual "equipment" is necessary but insufficient. I need to have a way to access God's Word. I need to have time in my schedule to pray. But no matter how much access we have, how much time we have, how many opportunities we have...eventually we have to be responsible enough to act.

There will be days we fail to act; just as there will be days I fail to use the equipment I put together at our house. But my prayer is that we can all strive to "be doers of the Word and not hearers only."

FUSION NEWS

In Writing

How would you describe God? Would you try to describe His power and might? I suppose you could begin to write about how much He is able to do, but I think you'd quickly find out that you'd be using the word "everything" a lot. Would you then try to work through His attributes? Again, you'd find yourself racking your brain trying to think of everything that God is. You'd look at what all He has done, and you could analyze every decision He's made. You could begin to paint a picture, but soon enough you'd find out your canvass is infinitely too small. So maybe instead of writing about what God is and has done, you could solely write out what He has done for you.

You begin writing about how He first has given you life. You remember when God has led you through difficult times. You can clearly see His hand working in different moments of your life. But just as you succeed in remembering these things, you quickly realize you don't know exactly everything that He has done. You don't know how He has orchestrated and planned for you. You don't see some of the answered prayers that He's delivered to you. You then come to admit that God is far greater than anything you could try to put down on paper or confine to a box of understanding.

The important lesson here isn't to fully define God, the important lesson is to wholly trust on God who is immeasurable. We can become so afraid in life. Our vision can become so reduced that we focus inward on ourselves and what we are capable of that we forget to look at our God who is capable of everything. Remember what God is capable of, who He is, and what He has already done for you.

Proverbs 3:5-6

Trust in the LORD with all your heart, and do not lean on your own understanding.
