A Bit More History

Last week, our sermon covered a lot of history. We looked at the world of the disciples, especially some key leaders who had taken control of Israel at some time. The point was simply to see that when Jesus reminds them of how the Gentiles "lord over" their authority, this was not an abstract or theoretical statement: the disciples had seen the leaders of their world do some truly horrific things.

We could study the background of the New Testament for years and never exhaust our resources, but I did want to add a bit more to our study from last week. I want to talk about messianic expectation.

James and John, the two main characters in our text from Matthew 20, grew up in a world of oppression and hopelessness. Rome was on top, and underneath Rome sat all kinds of corrupt sub-leaders: the Herods, Pontius Pilate, the Jewish authorities, and other wealthy bureaucrats who lived in luxury while nearly suffocating the common man.

For most Jews, the only possible hope was that there might be a Messiah—someone to come and lead them out and place them on top. But did you know that there were other "messiahs" before and after Christ? That's right, Jesus was not unique in his claim to be the leader of Israel...what made Jesus unique was the way he led and his resurrection from the dead.

Jesus was probably born in the midst of, or immediately following, a messianic Jewish revolt at the turn of the first century. The people were not successful for long, but they did inflict some damage in Jerusalem and the surrounding areas as they resisted Rome and Rome's allies that had occupied Jerusalem. Interestingly, much of this revolt took place during the time of Pentecost in Jerusalem.

This revolt was met with extreme force. The insurrectionists were defeated, along with any would be "messiahs," and 2,000 revolutionaries were crucified. This was Rome's way of deterring future revolts.

So, when Jesus began to be identified as the Messiah it is only natural that the disciples and crowds were expecting him to be a similar leader—except that he would finally be the one to actually win. But the irony of the gospel is that Jesus won by losing: he saved the world and became the King by losing his life and being humiliated. In so doing, though, he accessed a power that was far greater and longer lasting than the power of brute force.

Jesus' "revolt" was a revolt of self-sacrifice, love, and truth. Like the earlier revolt, Pentecost served as a key moment in establishing that Jesus' kingdom had truly been established and could never be thwarted by the powers of the world. But rather than a day filled with bloodshed, it was a day filled with the Holy Spirit—the same Spirit that is still at work among the people of God today!

Staying in Touch with YOUTH

A Good Name

Though he's been gone for many years, I'll never forget what my great-uncle told me about one of the most important things in life: "I don't have much, but I do have the good name Papa left me." The honor associated with His name was in his mind, crucial for him to maintain, and indeed, everyone who knew him would tell you that he was a caring, sharing, moral, principled, respected and, most all of, a godly man. All of his life, he lived in what most would consider poverty, but never once did he give me the slightest idea that he felt he was poor!

What lessons did his good name among men teach? First, his good name was always linked to integrity. He daily worked hard to see that he "provided for things honest in the sight of all men" (Rom. 12:17). When my uncle Forest gave his word physically, emotionally and spiritually, everyone knew he was true to what he said or promised. Second, he treated his good name as a precious inheritance, not to be wasted, misused, or abused (cf. (Eccl. 7:1a). He wanted to honor the memory of his father, so he worked diligently to avoid doing anything that would tarnish his name. Third, he wanted to make sure his name always heralded the fact that he was a person of righteous character! He endeavored to walk daily with the Lord, wanting to live in God's grace and in obedience to Jehovah's will so that his name would be written in the Lamb's Book of Life (Rev. 20:12,13; 21:25-27).

How are you treating YOUR name? It doesn't matter as to your age. We should all do what we can to make sure we have a good name among men.

Lesson 5 Joseph- His Brothers, Egyptian Captivity

Memory Verse:

"God is our refuge and strength, always ready to help in times of trouble." Psalms 46:1

In this lesson, your child will learn about Jacob and his sons. Jacob's favorite son was Joseph which made all of the other brothers very jealous. The brothers decided to get rid of their brother by throwing him into an empty well. Joseph was also known for being a dreamer. God gave him the ability to understand and interpret dreams.
