Beauty and Truth

It doesn't take long to realize that people are not strictly "rational" beings. Logic is powerful, and many people find themselves persuaded by a clear statement of facts; yet, there are a great many logical truths that ordinary people set aside all the time.

For example, we know that seat belts dramatically decrease the likelihood of death by motor vehicle accident—and yet many people still drive without wearing one. We know that smoking significantly increases the likelihood of disease and premature death—and yet many people still smoke. We know there's a 1 in about 14 million chances of winning the lottery, and yet many people try their "luck." Why?

The simple truth is that we are not machines who process data and make mechanical decisions. We are far more complicated than that. We are people, with the capacity for emotion, logic, relationships, morals, and more. As such, our life decisions are based on more than just logical truths.

This can be a great thing, because a purely mechanical existence would be void of any possibility for love. Think about when a child falls into a body of water—does anyone do calculations to determine the odds of the child surviving? No! You just jump in after them—some things are more important than the "odds." On the other hand, it can also be a sad thing since many times we bring unnecessary harm upon ourselves by refusing to listen to reason (as in the three examples above).

Today I'd like to quickly remind you that sometimes sharing our faith can be frustrating. We can think that we have presented perfect rational arguments for the existence of God, the resurrection of Jesus, the reliability of the Bible, etc. And then we can find ourselves being confused by the lack of response from the person we are talking with. Sometimes we have this frustration because we forget that people are people, not robots. We forget that there is more to sharing our faith than just sharing facts—no matter how truly great those facts are!

I like the way one person put it: "There is a way of talking about Christianity that makes people say, 'I don't believe it's true, but it would be great if it were.' You have to get to the beauty of it to ever get to the place where people will listen to the reasons for it."

In other words, people often need to see how wonderful a relationship with Jesus is before they are willing to hear how true Christianity is. Christ has not primarily called us to be "fact-tellers" but to be "good news sharers"—and that's different. It isn't merely spitting out arguments, it is showing the joy and wonder that Jesus has brought into our lives. When we pair that beauty with the facts of our faith, then we are best prepared to reach out to our neighbors with the gospel.

Staying in Touch with YOUTH

Find Something Good

Find something good about each you live,
 Refuse to be negative or to offer complaint.
 Open your eyes and open your heart,
 Have an attitude that befits a saint!
 The one who claims fellowship with heaven
 Fully believes each cloud has a silver lining,
 So, he becomes more productive with his time
 And doesn't waste it by complaining and whining!
 Saints are fully aware that life's not fair,
 But they don't lament if they come up short.
 For they have faith in the Father to bring balance to life
 And they are comforted by His constant support!
 A child of God never loses confidence,
 Though he may be severely tested and tried.
 He knows he'll always persevere
 For he trusts his Savior and guide!
 People around you may act ugly and mean
 And they may test your patience and even your love;
 But you refuse to let their hate fill your heart
 And your instead look for the blessings that flow from above.
 So yes, God's children can see the good in each day
 Because the Almighty has sharpened their sight-
 To see that even in the midst of trial
 That the Lord will provide what is good and right!

Lesson 6

Joseph

Memory Verse:

"Be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you." Ephesians 4:32

In this lesson, your child will be taught about the importance of praying and seeking to do God's will through learning about Joseph, the dreams he interpreted, and the relationship with his brothers. Please discuss these stories with your child so that they will continue to learn and study God's word throughout the week.
